This is to be followed by the formulation of a definition for the Culture of Caring at Frontier involving representation from staff, faculty, and students. Action plans will be developed and implemented for instituting this culture of caring in the Frontier community.

- This workgroup focuses on increasing student opportunities for clinical experiences that support physiologic birth. We recently surveyed students about what they want from these experiences as well as what they would be willing to do to get more experience with physiologic birth. Faculty was also surveyed to help identify clinical sites that provide experience with physiologic birth. This committee works to ensure quality out of hospital birth experiences. I review protocols and outcomes from homebirth sites before students are approved to use these as clinical sites. Recent changes in policy resulting from recommendations of this workgroup include the requirement that all birth center sites be CABC accredited.
